RUSS EXECUTE 2 MORE RIOTERS IN E. GERMANY

BERLIN, June 24 (AP)—Two more East German workers Thursday were reported shot by Russian firing squads, boosting the total of the martial law period to 29 executions. Meanwhile, the Soviets gave their puppet East German government a final chance to invoke control over the rebellious anti-Reds.

Reports from the Russian zone said two Dresden workers had been executed by the Soviets. State security police continued making arrests in Saxony, seizing 400 persons in Dresden, 115 in Freital, and 78 in Tharandt.

The forced evacuation of families of workers convicted of having gone on strike during the East zone riots began at Cottbus near the Polish border. The action was taken on orders of the East German interior ministry.

The two top Communist bosses of the puppet government, Premier Grotewohl and Deputy Premier Walter Ulbricht, made a strange penitential pilgrimage in the provinces Wednesday night. Their oratory was wrapped in sackcloth-and-ashes phrases to explain what had been allowed to happen in East Germany last week.

Cabinet Stays In

Earlier in the day Grotewohl had been permitted by his Russian masters to announce that his government will not resign and thus yield to the "provocateurs" of the bloody revolt. Instead, he said, his cabinet will stay in office and fulfill its "duty" by correcting its "mistakes."

In a bid to placate the rioting workers, he promised to free many of the thousands arrested, increase social benefits, and lighten the rearmament burden. His regime handed 40 nationalized factories back to private hands and launched a "new course" to permit "public discussion" of workers' complaints in the factories.

Russian permission for East Berliners to cross the troop-guarded inter-sector border to their jobs in West Berlin was extended Wednesday night to include all Soviet zone residents employed in the western sectors. The Soviet-controlled East German radio charged repeatedly that Allen Dulles, head of the United States central intelligence agency, gave direct orders that set off the strike riots.

A United States high commission official said Allen Dulles, brother of Secretary of State Dulles "hasn't been within 3,000 miles of Berlin for many months."

But Russian troops and tanks still held 18 million sullen German people at bay under martial law.

Allies Protest Again

The three western allies made a second demand on the Soviets to lift martial law and comply with four-power agreements for free traffic circulation in Berlin.

The allies rejected in strong words the Soviet charge that the uprising which cost hundreds of lives was incited by agents from the west.
